

Ana E. Núñez, MD is a Professor of Medicine and Professor of Obstetrics & Gynecology; Associate Dean of Diversity, Equity & Inclusion and the Director of the National Center of Excellence in Women's Health and Women's Health Education Program at Drexel University College of Medicine (DUCOM) in Philadelphia Pennsylvania.

Dr Núñez trained in internal medicine at Hahnemann University. Her post-graduate training includes fellowships in medical education (Michigan State University); health services research (AAMC/RWJ) and health policy (AAMC/Commonwealth). She also completed a fellowship in Executive Leadership in Academic Medicine (ELAM) at Drexel University.

As a national recognized medical educator and health services researcher, she developed NIH funded curricular models in sex/gender and cultural competence and developed innovative outreach models. Her community participatory research includes the Philadelphia Ujima™ Health Collaborative linking and empowering Philadelphians towards improved health. She has contributed on health status work in cardiovascular disease. She has also contributed to health disparities solutions that are culturally and trauma informed. Dr. Núñez serves on multiple national advisories and councils as well as national faculty curricular advisories in health services research, chronic disease and basic science research.

Dr. Núñez has crafted and overseen national models for health professional education. She serves as an educational leader and mentor for trainees who are underrepresented in medicine. She contributes to national Centers of Excellence for Academic Minority Faculty and has served on an Institute of Medicine panel.

In Dean's role, she spearheads organizational change and provides leadership to promote excellence in the COM's mission of quality education, care and research through augmenting diversity and inclusion. She oversees innovative STEM/STEAM pipeline programs for medical education.

Her numerous awards in teaching, community outreach and service include the prestigious, Herbert J. Nickens award from the Association of American Medical Colleges and the Al Dia City of Philadelphia Hispanic Heritage Honoree in Health. She is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha and Fellow of the American College of Physicians. She is the editor-in-chief of the journal Health Equity.

She also serves as Vice Chair on the board of Women Against Abuse. She is a general internist.